MEMORANDUM FOR: DIS

Rec'd in OCA 28 April 86

FROM: C/CRD

SUBJECT: Briefing of Senator Durenberger Staff Members on HRP

1. From 15:30 to 17:00 hours on 2 April in Room 1D29 at Headquarters two members of Senator Durenberger's Staff were briefed on the Historical Review Program (HRP). They were Edward P. Levine and John Nelson. The briefers were Ken McDonald, head of the History Staff, C/CRD and C/CRD/HRB.

2. Mr. Levine first asked for background on the History Staff and McDonald covered that subject thoroughly which brought us up to the HRP period. McDonald then covered the creation of the HRP and provided some overview such as Director Casey's role and support for the program, the formation of the HRP, and the role of the History Staff in the HRP.

3. McDonald then in broad perspective the implementation of the HRP experience in CIA that lent itself to the new program, our desire to make this a cooperative effort within the CIA, that information security is a line responsibility and we therefore need to get other components involved and kept them abreast of what we are doing, and that this approach was prudent and necessary to overcome concern over the large scale release of Agency information. At least this would limit the misunderstanding and lack of knowledge that often causes concern.

4. C/CRD/HRB then covered what the Branch has done and is doing. He covered the procedures used, pointed out that some procedures are still being developed and some will need modification based on actual experience, he identified the records that have been worked on, where we are in processing the three groups of records currently in the program, discussed some of the procedural problems and what has been done about them.

5. Ed Levine showed some understanding for security needs - "there is some information I would not want to see out even after 40 years" -, but he appears more interested in getting information out to the public - "well, if you release 99% of it you wouldn't have problems in controlling the remaining classified documents." He stated at one point that historians would love to get the official records of an operation to compare it with what had been written about it by those supposedly in the know. C/CRD pointed out that such records would probably be in designated files and wouldn't be considered for the HRP. At the end Levine had two questions:

a. Did the HRP need more people?

ANSWER: C/CRD answered that it would be premature to increase personnel, it would be best to wait until the program settles down and we have a clearer picture of how efficient and effective we are with the current staff;

- b. Could he use the outline of our remarks as provided by Ken McDonald (copy attached) in remarks he will make before the Organization of American Historians, April (10-13, 1986 in New York ?

ANSWER: We told Levine that the outline was not classified. Nevertheless, he said that he would draft a page and a half on what he intends to say and will pass it by us before the meeting.

6. The meeting was held in a friendly atmosphere, there were no awkward moments and no indications other than one would find in a frank exchange of views. Levine said he appreciated the time we took to talk to him and discussed how he might pass the information on to two other Senators who would be interested in the HRP, Senators David L Boren (Democrat, Oklahoma), and William S. Cohen, (Republican, Maine).
